

passports marked & we scrambled ashore. Of course Kaye & I had no money and we had to walk all over the city. We saw the Kings Palace & looked over the store but we found it dull & messy in contrast to Copenhagen. There wasn't even the quaintness of the Hanseatic city. The flowers we had been first thrilled by were missing but maybe they were out further. We could hardly express much joy from a walking tour. Footsore & weary we returned to the boat to watch for the girls. Finally they appeared. - on the other side of the gang plank. Helen came on but Elise & Star were delayed. Their tickets were lost & the officers wouldn't let 'em on board. In Copenhagen they said they had forwarded them. They had to be examined by the doctor & all kinds of fool things. Finally as the sailing hour approached they dug up the tickets in a long lost drawer and the day was saved. The Slick took his lady friends ashore & got the most lovely flowers. They even had the energy to dance in the afternoon. I weakened & got a deck chair, another few dollars & I wonder if I will get home! After dinner Suffy read us Mize Baby in her usual fine style then the band struck up & we had a little exercise. The Shuk introduced himself and he really is the most heavenly dancer, tall and lean and black wavy hair - brown eyes. I find he has not the wife as yet. Her name is Florida, Mexico, all over the States & Canada so speaks very good Eng. His lady love can hardly understand a word. They are going to Chicago.

Sun.

To-night I'm so damn cold. Sitting in my chair. The Shuk came along and told me I was turning my back on Scotland. I'll say I was! I found the Orkney Islands wonderful. immense cliffs with sheer drops into the sea. How I hate to rub my nose against them, It is 8.30 yet they stand out clearly & you can see the green tops

The band played in the usual grand style and we frolicked about. The shucks fond lady wore her fur coat dancing, she is short, a battle blond and has the result of a blackened eye. He must be unduly rough. I passed by them saying a fond good-night. It was quite the berries. In the passenger list I found his name to be Jensen.
